1. PND - Jo Bingley's husband on Lorraine Kelly

Did anyone see the husband of a woman called Jo who threw herself in front of a train when she had PND?

She asked for help with nurses, care worker and was a nurse herself, but was brushed aside and ended up killing herself. Her husband is now raising thier daughter alone and setting up a foundation The Joanne \(Joe\) Bingley Memorial Foundation.

I think this amazing. What a inspiration!

I had PND myself and there is def not enough support so i just wanted to tell you other mums about this xxx

Hi Aimee

Thanks for posting, just had a look at your link, what a great website. Thanks for posting it and hopefully other netmum users will have a look too.

I hope you're feeling better now too

- Just seen Chris from the Jo Bingley foundation on lorraine Kelly on itv1. Fair play and I support you 100%. It's extremely difficult to go through that and do so much good. The reason I set up this group was to spread the word that pregnancy and parenthood isn't roses and get people talking about depression in pregnancy. There's not enough enough information and although it shouldn't be you who has to provide a leaflet, I'm so very glad you do because if you didn't, new mums and dads wouldn't get the vital information !! If you havnt gone over and seen their page, please do so.
